German language skills, German classes

1. For Diploma, Bachelor and Master Programmes

As you know from the admission requirements, basic German language skills are necessary before you can start your studies at our university. Even if you have passed the aptitude test successfully, you will not be allowed to start your studies before you will have proved your German language skills. Reason for this: language of instruction at our university is German. There are several theoretical courses (like history of art and design, psychology, aesthetics) you have to take and where you also have to hand in written term papers and to pass written exams in German. Therefore and on behalf of all students, our university insists on good knowledge of German language before studying.

Proof of German skills until the aptitude test: As all exercises of the test (in written or in spoken form) will be in German, at least basic German language skills are necessary in order to pass the apptitude test. Foreign students, who have not sufficient knowledge of German language, often do not reach enough scores because of misunderstandings.

Proof until the begin of study: You can only start your studies at our university, if you can proof sufficient German language skills until the begin of study in October. Generally this means that you have to succeed in one of the following language tests:

- Test DaF for further information about Test DaF, look at the page <http://www.testdaf.de/index.php>
- German language university entrance exam for foreign students (DSH) (for further information about DSH, look at the page: <http://www.goethe.de/ins/de/spr/int/dsh/enindex.htm>)

For the case that you should have different certifications, please first of all contact the International Office of the Burg Giebichenstein: international@burg-halle.de / phone: ++49.345.77 51 693

2. Proof for Fine Arts postgraduate students and visiting students (ERASMUS, free mover)

The professor you are working with on a project will decide whether your German language skills are sufficient for a good communication within your courses. It is suggested having achieved at least a medium language level. The Test DaF and the DSH-exams are not required, but there is no opportunity for postgraduate students to attend German language courses in foundation courses.

Language tests and preparing courses

Where can I take the required language tests?

In principle the essential language skills should be acquired in your native country before you start your studies in Germany. Please inform yourself at the Goethe-Institution or via internet about worldwide language centres where you can pass the Test DaF <http://www.testdaf.de>
In addition you have the opportunity to pass the German language university entrance exam for foreign students (DSH) (or in several facilities the Test DaF) at the universities and in the foundation courses in Germany. Both language tests are realised twice a year in the foundation course of Martin-Luther-University in Halle.

I know that my German language skills are not sufficient. What can I do?

Again: try to bring your German skills to perfection in your native country. If you are from a country not providing any German language courses, you can make use of the opportunity to apply for a DSH preparation course in the foundation course of the university at first for free. You can take the aptitude test not until the following year. Generally beginners can not be considered. You should at least have solid basic level skills in order to be admitted to a DSH-preparing course as the number of seats is limited. There is neither a guarantee nor a claim for such a seat. Only applicants, who have already passed the aptitude test, can be accepted (concerning the available capacity of the courses). As long as you attend the DSH-preparation course, you are not registered at the University of Art and Design, but in the foundation course of the Martin-Luther-University Halle. A regular attendance of art and design courses at our university is not possible during this time. Further information about the course and about DaF-Test or DSH-exams are available among:

Studienkolleg der Martin-Luther-Universität Halle –Wittenberg, Nietlebener Str. 6, 06126 Halle,

Equivalent of the German „Abitur“ (Higher Education Entrance Qualification)

What can I take as equivalent to the German Abitur?

Prerequisite for admission to studies at Burg Giebichenstein is the equivalent of a German higher education entrance qualification (“Abitur”).

There are applicants who have fulfilled all requirements to enter university in their home country, but who are not fully entitled – according to German guidelines (Richtlinien der Kultusministerkonferenz) – to directly enter a German postsecondary institution. Those applicants have to pass the so-called “Feststellungsprüfung” at the Studienkolleg.

An exception may be made for those who have passed the Artistic Aptitude Test with the additional remark outstanding artistic aptitude. Those candidates are exempt from the “Feststellungsprüfung” and may enter the program directly. However, this privilege will be granted by the committee in very few cases only.

Status of applicants can only be determined after the Office of Student and Academic Affairs has reviewed the complete application dossier (consisting certifications of high school, college/ university, university entrance tests and transcripts...). We urge you to submit your complete dossier as early as possible in order to avoid disappointments for all parties involved in this process.

Creative aptitude test (method in order to prove your creative and artistic aptitude)

What is a creative aptitude test?

In order to be accepted as a regular fulltime (i.e. degree seeking) student at Burg Giebichenstein in the Diploma-programmes of Fine Arts and in the Bachelor-programmes in Design, applicants have to take an entrance test (Artistic Aptitude Test). The test evaluates artistic and design abilities and is administered once a year, usually at the end of March / beginning of April, by our school. Applicants should be imaginative and able to think logically, they should demonstrate a special talent for drawing, and have an ability to imagine three-dimensional spaces.

How can I apply for the aptitude test?

The registration for the aptitude test is possible online on our homepage (www.burg-halle.de) from 15th December till 15th March every year. Upon registration applicants will receive an invitation with more detailed information (time, place, required material and accommodation possibilities...). Those who need a visa are urged to register well ahead of time. We will then be able to provide you with the necessary invitation letter.

You have to bring along copies of your certifications (translated into German) as well as your portfolio to the aptitude test.

Please do not send any portfolios!

Unrequested posted applications can not be sent back after the aptitude test for financial reasons. We also do not assume any liability for these applications.

How long does the aptitude test take and how is it organized?

The aptitude test takes maximum three days for applicants of Art Studies and two days for applicants of Design Studies (for Studies of Communication Design maximum five days) and consists on three parts: preselection procedures and main selection procedures and interview. The preselection is based upon the applicant's portfolio and will be made during the first day of test (depending on the course of studies) either directly after a review of all portfolios or after some more drawing exercises. A successful preselection leads to participation in the main selection. During the main selection a test will be administered consisting of free artistic work, drawing exercises, written exams and an interview with the selection committee. In order to pass the selection, candidates must reach a minimum of 40 points out of 100 and must have reached a minimum of 10 out of 20 points in the interview. The interview will be held in German.

Those who have successfully passed the test may then apply to the school for the coming fall or for the year thereafter.

IMPORTANT: The test will be administered entirely in German.
It is thus strongly recommended that participants have some basic knowledge of German.

What is important for my application portfolio?

There are no specific requirements of technique, material, size or content for your personal portfolio. Only applicants of Communication Design Studies will receive a supplementary homework, which can be found in the invitation for the aptitude test after having registered online. Basically the portfolio should consist of a minimum of 20 works, not being older than 2 years. The selected works should show a variety of techniques as well as your interest in the particular course of studies and your creativity. Sculptures and similar works can be included as photographs. Printed samples of digital work, such as printed sequence of a video or an animation, may be included. CDs and DVDs cannot be considered during the preselection. They may be brought to the interview.
Only exception: Zeitbasierte Künste (Time-based Arts). Digital work should be included already in the portfolio!

When does the next aptitude test take place?

The next aptitude test takes place from 26th March 2012 – 30th March 2012

You can online apply for only one program of studies. But it is possible to change your choice until the beginning of the aptitude test.
